BIOGRAPHY

"Music has been part of my life ever since I first performed on stage at age 8 – playing the accordion, an instrument I still love to this day. I have always looked at life through art. Writing lyrics, painting and sharing songs have become a passion. I like to tell stories that make us happy or sad, laugh or cry or make us stop and ponder just about everything or anything. That's what I do. I hope some of my songs have struck a personal chord."

Thanks for taking the time to listen!"

Dr. Oxide

Dr. Oxide was born and raised in Edmonton, Alberta, Canada. It was his frequent visits to his grandfather's farm that kept him in touch with his prairie roots - there among the wide-open spaces his creative outlook was influenced and formed.

The Doctor has been writing songs for over two decades. Several of his songs have become "headliner" anthems at various political and environmental benefits. Over the years, Dr. Oxide has been a regular performer/activist at many festivals. He played at one of the first international conferences on acid rain and at many other environmental benefits including performances for saving the whales, renouncing uranium mining and for protecting the Wild Horses of Suffield, Canada's largest herd of wild horses.

He is a past Director of Greenpeace, Alberta, Canada and strongly believes that "there is no greater issue than the environment, our need to protect and enhance our habitat. It is time that we all become good stewards of our sacred planet earth."

THE DOCTOR'S COMMENTARY ON THE 3 of Hearts ❤ COLLECTION

1. Alberta Skys

A tribute to the beauty and mystical power of the ordinary in nature

The common poplar trees are viewed by many as weeds, a menace to be removed – but in nature we are always surrounded by beauty, even in what seems mundane.

2. Bill Miner

A portrait of one of the West's last infamous outlaws – the gentleman bandit who coined the phrase "Hands-up!"

Bill Miner worked both sides of the border. In Canada he gained notoriety for "the first train robbery in Canadian history".

3. 3 of Hearts

A song of love lost and eternal hope

It is not uncommon to be entangled in love's triangle - receiving or dealing a "3 of hearts".

4. Crying In the Rain

A song about the love and pain we feel in broken relationships, and of renewal

"Just like the falling leaves" there is a natural cleansing power in love's traumatic cycles.

5. Cowbell Blues

Think Before You Eat

We live in the plastic age – one of genetically modified foods, mad cow, avian flu, and hormone enhanced farmed fish. Let's rethink our approach to ensure that whatever our individual choices it is from a more environmentally sustainable and humane point of view.

6. Locked In Pop

Is there anything wrong with sometimes just zooling and being a couch potato?

Cause "it sure feels really nice to sit down to a cold pop"!

7. Too Much Shit in the Sea

There is no greater issue than the environment, our need to protect and enhance our habitat.

It is time that we become good stewards of our sacred planet earth. 2005 was the warmest year ever recorded. Your planet needs you. The time for action is now!

8. Different Shoes

A whimsical look at the many walks we take in the journey through life.

"I have different shoes for different weather. Some are suede and some are leather."

9. Dog Song

A look at our capitalistic society through the eyes of one of society's much loved and best friends.

"Everybody try to stay calm."

0. Penguins

What are they doing? Where are they going in such a hurry? How does it affect our lives?

Should we really care - about lost corporate suits spinning wheels on harleys, going nowhere pecking snow
